

Space Force Association Names Abi Scott as Chief Operating Officer

The Space Force Association (SFA) is pleased to announce the appointment of Abi Scott as Chief Operating Officer (COO).

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO, UNITED STATES, March 4, 2026

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The Space Force Association \(SFA\) is pleased to announce the appointment of Abi Scott as Chief Operating Officer (COO). In this role, Scott will partner with SFA's CEO and national leadership team to strengthen operational alignment, modernize organizational processes, and accelerate execution of the Association's strategic priorities. He will work across chapters, corporate partners, and volunteer networks to build scalable systems, enhance governance, and position the Association for sustainable national impact in support of the United States Space Force and Guardians.

Abi Scott was recently named COO of the Space Force Association

Scott retired after more than 25 years of service in the United States Air Force and United States Space Force, where he held senior leadership roles across the Indo-Pacific, the Pentagon, and the National Reconnaissance Office. Throughout his career, he led complex organizations at the intersection of technology, operations, and human capital, advising senior decision-makers and overseeing high-stakes missions.

As the Space Force's first Chief of Enlisted Workforce Development, Scott helped design and institutionalize the service's workforce development framework. His efforts drove enterprise reforms in training, talent management, and leadership development, strengthening readiness and supporting long-term force design.

"Abi brings a rare combination of strategic vision and operational excellence that will help the Space Force Association scale its impact nationwide,” said Damon Feltman, CEO of SFA. “His experience building organizations, developing people, and executing complex missions makes him the ideal leader to help guide SFA’s next phase of growth in support of Guardians and the USSF.”

In addition to his role at SFA, Scott serves as a strategic advisor in the government contracting and emerging technology sectors and contributes to innovative approaches to immersive leadership training. He holds an MBA and executive leadership certifications from Cornell University and Georgetown University.

About the Space Force Association

The Space Force Association is a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting the United States Space Force mission and promoting spacepower through education, advocacy, and professional development. The Association connects Guardians, industry partners, and advocates to strengthen the nation’s space enterprise and ensure continued space superiority.
