The initiative reinforces the company's mission of supporting founders and growth companies as they navigate international markets and build meaningful connections within the global investment community. Its presence in major financial and technology centers aims to deepen collaboration between entrepreneurs, investors, and strategic partners operating across multiple regions.

Founded by entrepreneur Kelly Couto, Couto Group operates as a strategic capital advisory firm focused on helping promising companies structure their growth strategies and position themselves for long-term expansion. The firm works closely with founders to refine strategic positioning, strengthen investor communication, and facilitate introductions within its international network.

"Innovation is global, and founders need access to strategic networks that extend beyond," said Kelly Couto, founder of Couto Group. "Our goal is to build bridges between high-potential companies and the global ecosystem of investors, partners, and industry leaders who help transform ideas into scalable businesses."

The expansion reflects Couto Group's broader strategy of building a globally connected advisory platform capable of supporting founders and investors operating in different markets. Through its international network, the firm collaborates with partners across Americas, Europe, the Middle East, and Asia, creating opportunities for cross-border dialogue and strategic cooperation.

In recent years, the growth of international venture capital flows and the rise of global innovation hubs have reshaped how startups access resources, talent, and capital. Couto Group seeks to contribute to a more connected entrepreneurial landscape where founders and investors can collaborate across borders.

The establishment of strategic hubs in Silicon Valley, Dubai, Hong Kong, Singapore, and Switzerland represents a key step in the firm's effort to strengthen its global presence while continuing to support founders building companies with international ambitions.
