Dr. Hartford has devoted three decades to his career as a physician, researcher, and educator in medicine and radiation oncology, demonstrating exceptional brilliance in his field.

Before embarking on his career in medicine, Dr. Hartford earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology and a Master of Arts degree in Philosophy from Stanford University and then traveled for a year with the international singing/dancing troupe Up With People. Following completion of his Doctor of Medicine degree at Harvard Medical School and his internship at Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital in 1993, Dr. Hartford completed his residency and fellowship in radiation oncology with the prestigious Massachusetts General Hospital while simultaneously receiving his Ph.D. in political economy and government from Harvard University.

Dr. Hartford's current clinical interests include a wide range of areas, such as central nervous system tumors, genitourinary cancers, bone and soft tissue sarcomas, and head and neck cancers. He also specializes in advanced technologies such as intensity-modulated radiation therapy, prostate brachytherapy, and stereotactic radiosurgery. His diverse clinical interests and expertise keep him at the forefront of the healthcare industry.

Throughout his remarkable career, Dr. Hartford has received many awards and accolades and has been recognized in numerous publications and magazines worldwide for his outstanding leadership and commitment to the profession. In 2020, he was named Top Doctor of the Year by IAOTP, appeared on the front cover of TIP (Top Industry Professionals) Magazine, and was featured on the iconic Times Square Billboard in New York. Other accolades from IAOTP include IAOTP's prestigious Presidential Award, the International Healthcare Hero Award, Top 25 Global Leaders, a dedicated chapter in IAOTP's 50 Fearless Leaders Publication, and broadcast on the Nasdaq Marquee. He just received his latest honors from the International Association of Top Professionals as Top Radiation Oncologist of the Year 2024 and the prestigious Presidential Award at the magnificent Gaylord Opryland Hotel in Nashville. Dr. Hartford has been named one of America's Top Doctors by Castle Connolly Medical annually for the past 13 years, one of NH Magazine's Top Doctors ten times since 2012, one of America's top cancer doctors by Newsweek Magazine, a Fellow of the American College of Radiology, a Fellow of the American Society for Radiation Oncology, and the recipient of numerous research fellowships from organizations such as the American Cancer Society, the American Association of Cancer Research, and the MacArthur Foundation. He will be awarded this December for his most recent selection of Global Man of Excellence for 2026.

Dr. Hartford has made notable contributions to medicine, with over 50 articles and scientific reviews published in esteemed medical journals. He is a passionate educator, having founded Dartmouth's radiation oncology residency program and frequently leading lectures for students, residents, and faculty. Beyond medicine, he authored his debut novel, The First Days of August, under the pen name Alan Froning. Dr. Hartford has also held leadership positions in prestigious organizations such as the American Society for Radiation Oncology, The American College of Radiology, the American Medical Association, the Radiological Society of North America, and several state medical societies.

Looking back, Dr. Hartford attributes his success to the grace of God, the love of wonderful parents, and the gentle care of friends and mentors. When not working, he enjoys jazz piano, writing, traveling, and spending time with his family. In the future, he hopes to continue providing excellent, innovative care to all his patients, educating future generations, and creating positive contributions to our society.
