

UNH FRANKLIN PIERCE LAW SCHOOL CONVENES PANEL TO EXAMINE THE CURRENT IMMIGRATION REGIME AND ITS CONSTITUTIONAL OVERREACH

The panel explores how immigration enforcement impacts undocumented individuals, visa holders, and U.S. citizens alike, while testing constitutional overreach.

CONCORD, NH, UNITED STATES, March 16, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Hispanic & Latine Law Student Association (HLLSA) at UNH Franklin Pierce School of Law will host a timely panel, "Immigration Regime Tests the Constitution: Enforcement or Overreach?" The event brings together experts in constitutional, immigration, and privacy law to examine whether recent immigration enforcement actions are lawful exercises of executive authority or constitutional overreach. It will explore how immigration enforcement is increasingly impacting undocumented individuals, visa holders, and U.S. citizens alike. "HLLSA is committed to fostering informed, inclusive dialogue about how law and policy affect our communities," said Manuel Cortés Jiménez, VP of the HLLSA FP Law chapter. "This panel will illuminate legal boundaries and practical impacts as enforcement evolves."
