

Women Rising America Ignites a National Movement Through the Power of Women's Stories

ST. LOUIS, MO, UNITED STATES, March 23, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Women Rising America is a groundbreaking female empowerment television series spotlighting the stories, voices, and perspectives of women across the globe.

Women Rising America is more than a television series—it is a national movement rooted in authentic storytelling, connection, and the transformative power of women's voices across generations.

Produced by GBCTV, Women Rising America is a story-driven, unscripted conversation series that brings together incredible, dynamic, and deeply resilient women in cities across the United States. Through raw, meaningful dialogue, the series explores life, friendship, reinvention, health, and personal evolution—revealing not just conversations, but the truth of who these women are and what they've overcome.

Recently picked up by TVSCO, a full-service syndication distribution company, the series is rapidly expanding its national footprint—bringing these powerful stories to a wider audience at a time when connection and authenticity matter more than ever.

Through honest conversations and powerful storytelling, Women Rising America shines a light on the real-life experiences of women in each city across the country, who are navigating life, lifting up others, and finding purpose along the way. Each episode highlights personal journeys full of challenges, triumphs, and everyday moments that other women can see themselves in and draw strength from.

St. Louis as and the Midwest ladies

Palm Springs+ San Diego

Filmed in visually rich, city-specific settings, each episode becomes a space for truth-telling, healing, and awakening. These are women who have navigated adversity, redefined themselves, and emerged stronger—women whose journeys do not just inspire, but activate something deeper in those who watch.

At its core, Women Rising America is about elevation—of voice, of story, and of collective experience.

Each woman featured represents more than her individual journey; she becomes part of a larger narrative—one that honors lived experience, sparks reflection, and creates ripple effects across generations. These are stories that daughters, mothers, and grandmothers can all see themselves in. Stories that stay with you, challenge you, and ultimately transform you.

What began in St. Louis has grown into a multi-city movement spanning Palm Springs, San Diego, and the Midwest, with additional cities on the horizon. Each location brings forward extraordinary women whose voices reflect both the uniqueness of their communities and the universality of the human experience.

While each city has its own identity and energy, the mission remains the same: to create a platform where authentic storytelling ignites connection, fosters understanding, and empowers women to rise—together.

“When we were presented with the idea for Women Rising, we immediately recognized it as more than a series—it was a platform where women’s voices could create connection, understanding, and real momentum, while inspiring others to rise,” said Scott Farber, Manager of GBCTV.net, LLC.

The Women Rising America franchise represents a new format in television. It’s a powerful blend of storytelling, sisterhood, and strength that reflects the true spirit of women rising across America. Created for and led by women, Women Rising America is not just telling stories—it is building a legacy of connection, courage, and truth. A living, evolving movement where women are seen, heard, and elevated—and where their stories have the power to impact lives for generations to come.
