HRS provides comprehensive commercial roofing services, including commercial roof assessments, commercial roof repairs, commercial roof maintenance and commercial roof replacement. They assist commercial building owners in a wide range of industries, providing the dedicated support necessary to maintain optimal roof conditions.

As a subsidiary of Haselden Construction, HRS clients receive a variety of important benefits.

Haselden Construction is a third-generation, family-owned Colorado company with over 50 years of experience performing commercial roofing services. They're the only general contractor of their size in the Denver area with a dedicated team of commercial roofers, allowing them to keep all work in-house. This provides clients with a more streamlined process that reduces the overall project timeline and ensures the most competitive pricing possible.

The new HRS Commercial Roofing website includes comprehensive pages discussing the scope of their services, as well as a dedicated section educating property owners about the most common commercial roofing systems. The website also contains a blog that regularly publishes in-depth articles regarding the most important commercial roofing issues impacting property owners. This information will provide property owners and facilities managers with a valuable resource when they're in need of commercial roofing services.
