

Vollrath Introduces New Humidity-Controlled Hot Food Display Cases

Vollrath's new hot food display cases feature integrated fan systems that extract humidity to hold fried foods longer than other cases.

SHEBOYGAN, WI, UNITED STATES, March 24, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Vollrath Company, a leading manufacturer of foodservice equipment and solutions, introduces three new humidity-controlled hot food display cases that hold fried foods longer while maintaining crispy quality.

"Our foodservice customers asked for solutions to keep hot food items crispy while tastefully displayed, and we answered with innovation that changes the way fried food is merchandised," said Vollrath Product Manager Becky Guentner. "Our new hot food display cases feature an integrated fan system that extracts humidity for maximum quality, and dual heating zones that accommodate a variety of fried foods."

Originally developed for a fried chicken chain, the Vollrath hot food display case is now available in three models, all classified by UL to NSF 4 standards:

3-pan enclosed case features space for up to 3 full-size steam table pans on each shelf, along with sliding glass doors on both the customer and operator sides.

4-pan enclosed case features space for up to 4 full-size steam table pans on each shelf, also with sliding glass doors on both sides.

Self-serve, open-front case combines high-quality hot food merchandising with convenient grab-and-go access for customers.

Vollrath's new hot food display cases feature integrated fan systems that extract humidity to hold fried foods longer than other cases.

All cases feature independent dual heating zones with user-adjustable radiant heat and preset shelf heat, LED lighting, wire racks for flexible display options, and doors that lift and remove for easy cleaning.
