“Our goal is simple: to give business owners clarity, control and confidence in how they manage payments,” Kopelman said. “Most business owners don't need another sales pitch. They need education.”

Weekly curated topics

Beginning March 25, 2026, the series will present weekly sessions on issues that are top of mind among business owners, from credit card processing strategy, ACH optimization, chargeback reduction, POS systems and regulatory compliance to payment advisory insights.

Each session will be hosted live and recorded, giving business owners flexible access to an extensive library of educational resources. Topics will evolve weekly and include deep dives into real-world payment infrastructure, emerging technologies and strategies designed to help businesses operate more efficiently and improve cash flow.

By and for business owners

The webinar series is designed for business owners, CFOs, entrepreneurs, multi-location operators and professionals seeking to better understand how payment systems impact profitability and operations.

In addition to the webinars, participants will have access to the NPSONE SKOOL community, a free online group where members can review sessions, ask questions and connect with other business owners navigating similar challenges.

“The focus is on helping businesses work smarter, not harder,” Kopelman said. “We’re covering the technologies and strategies that directly impact time, value and cash flow.”
