TrainingToday® platform has been named to the 2026 Capterra Shortlist for Learning Management System (LMS) Software, marking the third consecutive year the solution has received this recognition.

Capterra Shortlist highlights top-performing software products in each category based on a combination of verified user reviews and market popularity. Rankings are determined using Capterra’s proprietary scoring methodology, which evaluates products based on user ratings and search volume to identify widely adopted and highly rated platforms.

“We’re honored to be recognized on the 2026 Capterra Shortlist for LMS Software,” said Kim St. Lawrence, President of Product and Operations at BLR. “Because the Shortlist is driven by verified customer reviews, this recognition represents real-world experiences from the HR, safety, and L&D teams who use TrainingToday every day. We’re grateful for their feedback and proud to support their compliance and development initiatives.”

TrainingToday’s recognition reflects strong, consistent feedback from customers who rely on the platform to deliver audit-ready compliance training, reduce administrative burden, and scale workforce development across their organizations.

TrainingToday combines a streamlined LMS with expert-developed, continuously updated course libraries covering compliance, workplace safety, HR training, cybersecurity, leadership and business ethics, and professional soft skills. The platform supports bulk assignment by role or location, automated tracking and audit-ready reporting, and configurable learning paths for onboarding and ongoing development.
