Our goal is to help owners understand what is driving those behaviors and give them a practical path forward through consistent training and guidance.”

Bryan Swihart, owner and head trainer at Off Leash K9 Training, Atlanta.

The company offers training for dogs showing aggression, reactivity, fear-based behavior, and other serious behavioral concerns. These programs are designed to help owners better understand their dog’s behavior while building clearer communication and more reliable responses through structured training.

Off Leash K9 Training, Atlanta highlights multiple program options for dogs that need behavior-focused support. These include private training for aggression and reactivity as well as Board & Train options for dogs that may benefit from a more immersive training format. The training focuses on helping dogs develop better responses around common triggers while giving owners practical tools to manage behavior more confidently.

Off Leash K9 Training, Atlanta is led by Bryan and JoAnne Swihart, who work with dogs across a range of obedience and behavior needs. The company also highlights JoAnne’s work with fearful and anxious dogs, reflecting the team's focus on helping owners address both visible behavior issues and the underlying challenges that can affect daily life.

The company encourages dog owners to begin with a consultation to discuss their dog's behavior, training goals, and the most appropriate program. For families dealing with leash reactivity, social aggression, fear responses, or similar concerns, the training process is designed to provide a more structured and manageable way to work toward better behavior.
