The ProMedia Group operates as a design-build audiovisual firm, supporting enterprise, higher education, healthcare, and large-scale commercial clients. The company's growth has been supported by a focus on long-term client relationships and investment in technical talent, including a team that features two Crestron Master-level programmers and a Crestron Master-level engineer.

From Crestron's perspective, partners who demonstrate consistent execution, scalability, and technical depth are critical in supporting national and multi-site enterprise deployments. Firms like PMG are increasingly positioned to support clients seeking standardized solutions across multiple locations, particularly as organizations continue to prioritize unified communication and collaboration environments.

PMG has also expanded its regional presence with the addition of an Orlando office, strengthening its ability to support projects throughout Florida and the broader Southeast. The company maintains one of the larger in-house teams of engineers, programmers, and technicians in Central Florida, allowing for greater control over delivery and ongoing support.

The company's internal philosophy, reflected in its 2026 tagline "A Higher Standard," aligns with a broader industry shift toward accountability, workforce development, and long-term system performance rather than short-term project delivery alone.

As enterprise clients increasingly look for partners capable of delivering consistent outcomes at scale, Crestron continues to work closely with integrators that demonstrate both technical capability and organizational maturity.
