

Richard-Harvey Watch Co. Unveils The Lark— □A True GMT Field Watch Built for Every Environment

Live on Kickstarter, The Lark is a true GMT mechanical field watch with topographic dial and solar compass.

STERLING, VA, UNITED STATES, April 20, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Richard-Harvey Watch Co., a veteran-owned American watch brand focused on purpose-driven design, is currently live on global crowdfunding platform Kickstarter with its newest release, The Lark— a true GMT field watch built to move seamlessly between environments without compromise.

Designed for individuals navigating demanding, multi-faceted lifestyles, The Lark combines everyday wearability with the functionality of a professional tool watch. Whether transitioning between time zones, job sites, outdoor terrain, or formal settings, The Lark is built to remain on the wrist through it all.

The best thing someone can say about a Lark isn't that it looks good in a box — it's that it's been everywhere they have.”

founder Mathew White

"During my time in the military, the instruments and tools we used were purpose-built for one case. The watches we wore on deployment were no different — blacked out, digital, purpose-built. Incredible tools. But they were never going to be the Monday-through-Sunday watch. I kept reaching for something that carried that same precision and reliability without having to change it when the mission did. What I also came to understand is that no two adventures look the same," says founder Mathew White on the inspiration behind the project. "The Lark was built with that in mind— dress it up, dress it down, it rises to any occasion. One watch that moves between all of those worlds without ever asking you to choose."

At the heart of The Lark is its Solar Orientation System, built around the natural 24-hour geometry of the GMT movement. The GMT hand is dual-purpose: when the local hour hand is aligned with the sun, it functions as a solar compass; allowing wearers to use the sun to find north. It's a feature designed to stay unobtrusive in everyday wear, yet useful in the moments that call for it.□

“We build for the person who puts it on and forgets to take it off,” adds White. “The best thing someone can say about a Lark isn't that it looks good in a box — it's that it's been everywhere they have.”
