

AlmaLinux to Highlight its Community-Driven Linux OS at LinuxFest Northwest 2026

FORT MYERS, FL, UNITED STATES, April 22, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The AlmaLinux OS Foundation, a nonprofit that stewards the community-owned and governed open source enterprise Linux distribution AlmaLinux OS, today announced it will exhibit AlmaLinux OS at LinuxFest Northwest taking place

April 24–26 at the Bellingham Technical College in Bellingham, Washington.

LinuxFest Northwest is a premier community-focused event celebrating Linux, open-source software, and the broader technology ecosystem. The conference attracts developers, system administrators, cybersecurity professionals, and technology enthusiasts for a dynamic program of presentations, hands-on workshops, and networking opportunities. Known for its inclusive and collaborative environment, LinuxFest Northwest fosters knowledge sharing and innovation across the open-source community. Representatives from AlmaLinux will be available at the event to discuss the latest updates to AlmaLinux and answer questions from attendees.

“LinuxFest Northwest is a superb example of the power of open-source communities coming together to share knowledge and build the community that inevitably drives open source innovation,” said Benny Vasquez, Chair of the Board of Directors of the AlmaLinux OS Foundation. “We are honored to serve as a gold sponsor of an event that connects users, contributors, and organizations from across the open-source community.”
