At Kin Dee, the concept of a Thai restaurant in Houston Heights begins with where the food comes from. The menu is built from recipes tied to owner and founder Lukkaew Srasrisuwan's childhood and shaped by the same ingredients and flavors she grew up with. Everything is made from scratch, and that attention to detail is reflected throughout the menu. Dishes like the Southern Style Green Curry come through rich and layered, while the Drunken Noodles (Pad Kee Mao) reflect the balance and heat characteristic of traditional Thai cooking. The Mango Sticky Rice offers a clean, memorable finish that has become a guest favorite.

“

I want Kin Dee to bring people a sense of home. The menu is very homey, based on dishes I grew up eating in my childhood.”
