

Dental Implants in Turkey vs UK: Cost Comparison 2026

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, April 28, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The growing demand for affordable and high-quality restorative dental care has led many UK-based patients to compare treatment options abroad. In this context, Dr. Cinik Dental, a top-rated dental implant clinic, continues to attract international attention, particularly from patients seeking dental implants Turkey with a combination of cost efficiency and modern clinical standards. With increasing private dental costs in the UK, many patients are exploring alternatives such as dental implants Istanbul or dental implants Antalya. Turkey has emerged as a frequently considered destination, supported by advanced dental technologies and internationally recognized treatment protocols.

What Is the Dental Implant Cost in Turkey?

The dental implant cost in Turkey remains one of the main drivers behind international patient mobility. As of 2026, the average cost of a single dental implant ranges between €450 and €800. This typically includes the implant screw, abutment, and dental crown, providing a comprehensive treatment solution.

Premium implant systems are also available. For example, Straumann implants are offered at approximately €800 per implant. Clinics in Turkey report high success rates supported by digital diagnostics, 3D imaging, and computer-guided implant placement.

These pricing advantages are primarily linked to lower operational costs and economic factors, rather than differences in treatment quality.

How Does Dental Treatment in Turkey Compare to the UK?

The difference in dental treatment cost Turkey vs UK can reach 60–70%. In the United Kingdom, a single dental implant in private clinics typically ranges between £2,000 and £3,500. Full-mouth restorations, such as All-on systems, can cost between £30,000 and £45,000, making them inaccessible for many patients.

In contrast, patients opting for dental implants Turkey can access significantly lower pricing. For example, single implants may start around €680, while advanced full-mouth treatments such as All-on-6 solutions are available from approximately €2,450 per jaw.

This price difference is a key factor behind the increasing number of UK patients traveling for treatment.

The London–Istanbul Treatment Model

A notable development in 2026 is the hybrid care model designed for UK patients. Dr. Cinik Dental provides treatment in Istanbul and Antalya while offering pre- and post-treatment support through its London presence, including a Harley Street location.

This approach allows patients to benefit from:

Access to the same implant systems used in leading London clinics

Specialist teams performing a high volume of implant procedures

Coordinated guidance and follow-up support in the UK

Savings of up to 60–70% compared to London pricing

The model reflects a broader trend in dental tourism, where continuity of care is increasingly emphasized.

Cities such as Istanbul and Antalya remain key hubs for international dental patients.
