It reflects our ongoing commitment to meeting John Deere's high expectations while continuously improving our processes, capabilities, and customer support”

Scott Hoffman, Chief Executive Officer

“Earning the John Deere Partner Award for the second year in a row is a meaningful recognition of our team's dedication and hard work,” said Scott Hoffman, Chief Executive Officer of Fisher Barton. “It reflects our ongoing commitment to meeting John Deere's high expectations while continuously improving our processes, capabilities, and customer support.”

Fisher Barton has been a trusted supplier to John Deere since 1982 and has a long history of collaboration across multiple John Deere business units. The company's focus on engineering expertise, manufacturing excellence, and responsive customer support has helped strengthen this partnership over decades.

“This recognition underscores the consistency and reliability our customers expect from Fisher Barton,” said Len Anhold, Director of Operations Excellence, Automation, EHS & Sustainability, Fisher Barton. “Achieving Partner status again highlights the strength of our teams and our shared focus on operational excellence and continuous improvement.”

John Deere’s Achieving Excellence Program evaluates suppliers through a rigorous annual performance assessment. Partner level suppliers represent a select group recognized for sustained operational excellence and strong customer alignment.

Fisher Barton remains committed to investing in its people, processes, and technologies to support long term customer partnerships and deliver high quality, dependable solutions for the agricultural and turf markets.
