

CTSI-Global Names Kevin Beall as Chief Information Security Officer

Former CTO Kevin Beall named CISO, expanding CTSI-Global investment in cybersecurity.

MEMPHIS, TN, UNITED STATES, May 4, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Trusted in the field of supply chain management solutions since 1957, CTSI-Global reinvests in tech risk management with the appointment of Kevin Beall as Chief Information Security Officer.

In his new role as CTSI-Global CISO, Kevin Beall is at the helm of safeguarding supply chain intelligence for shippers and 3PLs.

“Cybersecurity and data protection are absolutely paramount in our business.

We are a technology company, so one of the core values we need to have is safe, reliable systems. Our customers put a lot of trust in us to keep their data private,” said Beall. He is developing a Trust Center where clients can review and access company security posture and policies.

“Security, compliance, and trust are foundational to the partnerships we build with our clients. Kevin Beall brings the leadership and expertise needed to strengthen our security framework and ensure that the systems and data our clients rely on remain protected and resilient. Just as importantly, our clients know they have a partner in us when disruptions occur, and our security leadership plays a key role in helping them navigate those moments with confidence,” said Ivonne Amill, COO.

After succeeding at 3PLs, Beall developed a 16-year tenure at CTSI-Global, excelling at roles
