

R3 Stem Cell Nashville Welcomes Tennessee's Landmark Stem Cell Therapy Law

New legislation establishes a clear regulatory framework for regenerative medicine - expanding safe, legal access to umbilical cord stem cell therapies.

NASHVILLE, TN, UNITED STATES, May 4, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- R3 Stem Cell Nashville, the world's leading provider of regenerative medicine, today celebrated the passage of Tennessee's new stem cell therapy law (House Bill 2246, fiscal note FM3092), which establishes the first comprehensive statewide framework for the lawful practice of stem cell and regenerative therapies. Sponsored by State Representative Chris Hurt, the legislation cements Tennessee as one of the most forward-thinking states in the nation for patient access to advanced biologic treatments.

This is a watershed moment for patients in Tennessee. For years, families have traveled out of the country in search of regenerative options. Now stem cell care is available right here in Nashville.”

Dr. Geneva Worthington, R3 Stem Cell Medical Director

The new law authorizes qualified physicians to administer both allogeneic stem cells (sourced from screened donor tissue such as umbilical cord and placental tissue) and autologous stem cells (harvested from the patient's own bone marrow or adipose tissue), provided that the cellular products originate from FDA-registered or accredited facilities. The law takes effect immediately for the purpose of promulgating rules, with all remaining provisions taking effect July 1, 2026.

“This is a watershed moment for patients in Tennessee. For years, families have traveled out of state — even out of the country — in search of regenerative options. Now, the highest standard of stem cell care is available right here in Nashville, under a clear and protective legal framework.”

Why the New Tennessee Stem Cell Law Matters

Tennessee's legislation creates ethical and medical guardrails that protect patients while preserving access to innovative therapies. As Rep. Chris Hurt stated when the bill passed the General Assembly: "Stem cell therapy is a lifeline for many in our state, and this legislation protects patients while safeguarding access to innovative treatments. By establishing a clear framework, Tennessee can uphold high standards, protect public health and expand availability to safe and effective therapies."

Under the new framework, every Tennessean now has the legal right to pursue regenerative stem cell and exosome therapies under the care of qualified physicians — a critical advancement for patients living with chronic pain, joint and spine conditions, autoimmune disease, neurological disorders, and the everyday wear-and-tear of aging.

Why R3 Stem Cell Nashville Is the Region's Go-To Provider

R3 Stem Cell Nashville is uniquely positioned to deliver on the promise of the new law. As a flagship location for the global R3 Stem Cell network — which has helped facilitate over 28,000 regenerative procedures across the world — the Nashville center combines national clinical scale with local, personalized care.

With the law in effect, R3 Stem Cell Nashville is expanding appointment availability to meet anticipated demand. Tennesseans — and patients traveling to Nashville from neighboring states — can now schedule consultations to learn whether stem cell therapy is right for their condition. Most evaluations are completed in a single visit, and many treatments are performed on an outpatient basis with same-day discharge.

“Our mission has always been to make regenerative medicine accessible, ethical and effective,” the medical director added. “With Tennessee’s new law, we can do that with even greater clarity and confidence — and bring world-class care to every patient who walks through our doors in Nashville.”
