LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, May 5, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A new pathway into healthcare is coming to Los Angeles this spring as Pulse Medical Assistant School prepares to launch its Los Angeles campus at 8540 S Sepulveda Blvd, Suite 1007. The program will offer Pulse's signature 16-week medical assistant curriculum, designed to combine the flexibility of online learning with the confidence-building experience of hands-on, in-person labs.

The program is structured around the realities of working adult learners. Live, instructor-led online sessions are paired with four full-day, in-person Saturday labs across the 16 weeks, plus an 80-hour externship in a live medical office completed before graduation. Through the partnership model that defines every Pulse campus, students train alongside practicing professionals gaining direct exposure to patient intake, vital signs, phlebotomy, EKG fundamentals, infection control, and the day-to-day workflow of a working primary care practice.

"Training alongside experienced professionals gives students a clear advantage when entering the workforce," said Chris Lofton, CEO of Zollege. "Our Los Angeles campus is designed to provide that real-world experience while keeping education accessible and efficient."

The accelerated, hybrid format is built for individuals who want a practical, affordable entry point into healthcare without the multi-year timelines and debt of traditional programs. The program includes the cost of the National Healthcareer Association's Certified Clinical Medical Assistant (CCMA) exam — meaning graduates can enter the workforce nationally certified and debt-free. Career outcomes vary, but Pulse cites a national average medical assistant salary of approximately $42,000 per year, per the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Enrollment for the spring cohort, which begins May 11, 2026, is now open.
