The Longevity and Mortality Investor Conference continues to bring together leading voices from across the life risk market for informed discussion, debate and collaboration.”

Chris Wells, Managing Editor

This year's conference is headlined by a keynote presentation from Professor David Blake of Bayes Business School. In his presentation, Prof. Blake will offer an in-depth look at the longevity market — its origins, evolution, and future potential as an investable asset class; his presentation will explore the development of the market over the past 25 years, including the quantification of longevity risk, key market requirements, macro-longevity assets, and the opportunities to expand the asset class

Panel sessions scheduled at the event include a 'State of the Market' discussion, where experts from across the pension risk transfer, life settlements and life ILS markets will share insights on current developments. A consultants' panel will explore how institutional investment consultants view longevity and mortality risk strategies, alongside a dedicated session on longevity benchmarking and index development.

The Longevity and Mortality Investor Conference also features a panel of leading legal and structuring experts who will examine key developments across the life risk market, and presentations that explore developments in longevity and mortality risk markets, emerging trends in longevity analytics and demographic modelling, and behavioural dynamics within the life risk sector.

The Longevity and Mortality Investor Conference is kindly supported by Venue Host, EY, and Prime Sponsor, Longevity Holdings, alongside Conference Leaders, ArentFox Schiff and Coventry Capital; Conference Partners, Hudson Structured Capital Management and Orrick; Break Hosts, BroadRiver Asset Management, Corry Capital Advisors, LifeRoc Capital and Wilmington Trust; and Conference Supporters, Apex Capital Partners, Club Vita, Computershare, Kilter Finance, Longevity Services, LHL Strategies, NorthStar Life Services, Preston Capital, We Buy Life Policy, and Willkie, Farr & Gallagher.
