About Kauai Spies and Bald-faced Lies. In Kent and Katcha, American spy Kent Brukner and his lover escape from Russia. Now five years have passed. Kent is a Honolulu lawyer, and Katcha, his Russian immigrant wife, is an American citizen, a college student, and mother to their son, Paulie.

Kent prepares a partnership agreement for a startup company building a new secret missile-tracking recorder—for the U.S. military on the Hawaiian island of Kauai. The chief financial officer's son is kidnapped. The ransom is not for money, but for the plans and specifications of the new recorder. Is there a mole in the company? A domestic terrorist?

Working with the FBI, will Kent be able to expose the spy and rescue the kidnapped son?

Meanwhile, Katcha's immigrant friends face an ugly legal mess caused by the New York City murder of their business partner. Can Kent help them while he's still spy chasing?
