Specializing in mold remediation, water damage mitigation, fire and smoke damage restoration, fentanyl cleanup, biohazard cleanup, and commercial mitigation services, the company has become a trusted resource for homeowners, businesses, property managers, and insurance professionals throughout Las Vegas, Henderson, North Las Vegas, Boulder City, Mesquite, Pahrump, and surrounding communities.

At the center of the company's growth is Vice President of Operations Gregory Arianoff, whose leadership style combines operational excellence, customer-focused service, and a deep passion for helping people during some of the most stressful moments of their lives.

"At PuroClean of East Las Vegas, our mission goes beyond restoring buildings," said Arianoff. "We're helping families and businesses recover after unexpected disasters and guiding them through difficult situations with professionalism, urgency, and compassion. That human element is what truly separates us."

The company's technicians hold multiple advanced industry certifications in structural drying, microbial remediation, fire and smoke restoration, trauma scene cleanup, and environmental safety protocols. This extensive training allows the team to respond quickly and effectively to complex losses involving water intrusion, mold contamination, fire damage, fentanyl crisis, and other environmental hazards.

Despite Southern Nevada's desert climate, mold growth and indoor air quality concerns continue to affect both residential and commercial properties throughout the region. Hidden plumbing leaks, improperly mitigated water losses, HVAC condensation issues, monsoon-related flooding, and aging infrastructure can all create ideal environments for microbial growth. PuroClean of East Las Vegas has become known for educating property owners on these risks while providing advanced remediation solutions designed to protect both structures and occupant health.

In addition to technical expertise, the company has built a strong reputation for its commitment to customer care and communication throughout the restoration process. From emergency response through final reconstruction coordination, the team emphasizes transparency, professionalism, and responsiveness — qualities that have helped generate strong relationships within the local community and insurance industry alike.

Arianoff's background in hospitality management and operations leadership has also helped shape the company's service culture. Prior to entering the restoration industry, he worked with internationally recognized hospitality brands and high-profile operations, experiences that continue influencing the company's emphasis on professionalism, accountability, and customer experience.

Beyond emergency services, PuroClean of East Las Vegas remains heavily involved in community outreach and charitable initiatives throughout Hawai'i Island and now Southern Nevada. The company actively supports local schools, youth athletics, educational programs, nonprofit organizations, community events, and charitable fundraising efforts.

"Our business is built on relationships and service," Arianoff said. "We believe being involved in the community isn't optional — it's part of our responsibility as local business owners. We want people to know we're here not only during emergencies, but also as long-term supporters of the communities we serve."

The company's dedication to service has also earned recognition within the broader PuroClean network and restoration industry. Leadership team members continue participating in advanced training programs, national networking events, and industry leadership collaborations focused on raising standards across the restoration profession.

As weather events, plumbing failures, indoor air quality concerns, and property damage incidents continue impacting homes and businesses throughout Southern Nevada, PuroClean of East Las Vegas remains focused on delivering fast, reliable, and professional restoration services backed by industry-leading expertise and compassionate customer care.

With a growing reputation for technical excellence, community involvement, and trusted leadership, PuroClean of East Las Vegas is positioning itself as one of the region's premier restoration and remediation companies while continuing to expand its impact throughout the Las Vegas Valley.
