

Lap of Love Launches Pet Hospice Journal to Help Families Monitor Quality of Life

TAMPA, FL, UNITED STATES, June 2, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Lap of Love Veterinary Hospice & In-Home Euthanasia is honored to share the Pet Hospice Journal, a free online tool designed to help families track their pet's health and comfort over time while supporting informed and compassionate end-of-life decisions.

The Pet Hospice Journal gives pet families a simple, user-friendly way to document daily changes and translate observations into measurable trends. By helping caregivers better recognize shifts in their pet's comfort and wellbeing, the tool also creates a more informed connection between families and their veterinary care providers.

"When a pet's health begins to change, the signs are often gradual and easy to miss in everyday life," said Dr. Mary Gardner, Co-Founder & CEO of Lap of Love. "The Pet Hospice Journal provides families with a compassionate way to monitor and measure those changes, helping reveal patterns that can lead to earlier support and better care for their pets."

Lap of Love's Pet Hospice Journal includes:

Quality of Life Tracking: Families can complete brief daily check-ins tailored to their pet's health conditions, including mobility concerns, heart failure, arthritis, and more. These entries generate quality-of-life scores that help identify meaningful patterns over time.

Visual Progress Graphs: The journal compiles entries into easy-to-read charts that help families and veterinarians monitor changes in comfort, appetite, mobility, behavior, and happiness.

Condition-Specific Monitoring: Caregivers can select the conditions most relevant to their pet, allowing for more personalized tracking and insight.

Clear Guidance for Families: The tool offers general quality-of-life indicators, including good, reduced, or poor quality of life, to help families recognize when additional support or end-of-life conversations may be needed.

Free and Accessible: The Pet Hospice Journal is available at no cost and allows families to create profiles for one or multiple pets while maintaining long-term care records.

The Pet Hospice Journal is part of Lap of Love's continued commitment to supporting pets and the people who love them through every stage of the end-of-life journey.
