U.K.ABROAD Launches New Expert Consultation Service for British Citizens Living Overseas

U.K.ABROAD has launched a new 30-minute Expert Consultation Service designed to help British citizens living abroad navigate increasingly complex passport, citizenship and travel requirements.

A short conversation with an experienced consultant can often save applicants months of frustration, helping them understand their options before costly mistakes are made.”

Tracey Roberts, Senior Advisor, U.K.ABROAD

The new service provides one-on-one access to experienced British passport specialists who can offer personalised guidance before applicants commit to a passport or citizenship application.

According to U.K.ABROAD, many overseas Britons struggle to find clear and reliable information regarding passport renewals, citizenship eligibility, supporting documents, identity verification requirements, and urgent travel situations. As a result, many turn to social media groups and online forums, where conflicting advice can often create confusion and unnecessary delays.

“Every day we speak to people who simply don't know where to start,” said Tracey Roberts, Senior Advisor at U.K.ABROAD.

“Whether it's a passport renewal, a citizenship claim, or understanding what documents are required, a short consultation can often provide the clarity applicants need before moving forward."

The consultation service was developed in response to a growing number of complex enquiries received by U.K.ABROAD consultants.

Recent cases have included individuals discovering they may be eligible for British citizenship through a parent, dual citizens facing difficulties due to expired passports before planned travel, applicants managing multiple citizenships with differing personal details across documents, and people who were uncertain whether they qualified for a British passport at all.

Many applicants also experience challenges meeting HM Passport Office identity confirmation requirements or understanding requests for additional documentation during the application process.

U.K.ABROAD says these situations often lead to delays that could have been avoided with expert guidance at the outset.

The new consultation service is particularly suited to individuals who:

- Are unsure whether they qualify for British citizenship or a British passport
- Have British parents or grandparents and need guidance on eligibility
- Hold multiple citizenships or foreign passports
- Have urgent travel plans and require advice on available options
- Need help understanding supporting document requirements
- Have received requests from HM Passport Office that they do not understand
- Require clarification regarding identity verification requirements
- Want professional guidance before submitting an application

During the consultation, applicants can discuss their personal circumstances directly with an experienced consultant who understands British passport applications from overseas and common issues that can cause delays.

The service aims to provide practical guidance, helping applicants understand the process, identify potential challenges early, and make informed decisions about their next steps.

Roberts believes demand for specialist advice will continue to grow as passport, citizenship and travel requirements become increasingly complex for British citizens living overseas.

"Many consultations start with a simple question such as 'Am I eligible?' or 'What should I do next?'," Roberts said.

"Sometimes the answer is straightforward. In other cases, we identify issues that could have delayed an application significantly. Either way, applicants leave with a much clearer understanding of their situation."

Millions of British citizens currently live outside the United Kingdom, and many face unique challenges when applying for passports, claiming citizenship, updating personal details, or travelling internationally.

U.K.ABROAD hopes the consultation service will help bridge the information gap by providing accessible, personalised advice from specialists familiar with overseas applications and HM Passport Office requirements.

The organisation has been assisting British citizens living abroad since 2008 and supports applicants across Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the United States, Canada, Europe, Asia, Mexico, South America and the Caribbean.

The Expert Consultation Service is now available to book online through the U.K.ABROAD website.

U.K.ABROAD is an independent passport assistance provider and is not affiliated with the UK Government or HM Passport Office.
