

HIP Video Promo Presents: DaLomonze premieres new music video on VENTS Magazine

DaLomonze's "For Your Love" Is a Timeless Declaration That Belongs to Everyone

CLEVELAND, OH, UNITED STATES, June 3, 2026

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Just about a year ago, two-time Grammy nominee and Dove Award nominee DaLomonze was gearing up to take the world by storm, unleashing a deeply personal display of hard-earned wisdom, musical mastery, and heartfelt storytelling stitched together with the scars, lessons, and triumphs of a life in music. Flash forward to today, and he's done it, though not quite how he expected. Growing up, he always considered music less of a career path and more of a calling, something deeply woven into who he is. The Cleveland-born artist, songwriter, engineer, and bandleader has been surrounded by music since childhood, first catching attention for his striking vocal range as a member of the Cleveland Children's Orchestra before plunging into the scene as a teenager under producer DJ Phatty Banks.

Since then, he has spent more than 15 years building his world piece by piece: writing and performing original songs, engineering records, building his own studio, leading a band, and pursuing his musical dreams with a clear and steady vision.

Where most artists see a mountain to climb, DaLomonze sees a mountain to conquer, and it is that tenacious drive that propels him from one opportunity to the next. When an unexpected viral moment thrust DaLo And The Band, the high-energy cover band that carries his name, into the limelight, new fans came flocking in by the thousands. With all eyes on him, DaLomonze took that momentum and ran with it, challenging himself to step out into the frigid Ohio winter and deliver 100 performances in 100 days, singing everywhere from barbershops to living rooms to restaurants and even The Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame. Following the release of his debut EP, Picture Day, he landed his first sync placement on the Season 4 premiere of The CW's All-American, with more placements on the horizon. After more than 15 years spent building quietly and steadily, one song, one stage, one opportunity at a time, DaLomonze is finally watching the seeds of that work begin to bloom.

When DaLomonze says “I will fight for you,” there is not even a hint of hesitation in those words. “For Your Love” is the ultimate declaration of devotion, the unbreakable testament of a lover who won’t let anything stand in the way of the person they adore most in the world. Built upon an enchanting violin sample crafted by classical violinist and friend Jamie Vaughn, the tender pop ballad feels perfectly suited for a fantasy world where electric brushes with romance run as wild as noble steeds, and nothing else matters more than the moment two people find each other. Supercharged with passion and sincerity, DaLomonze’s vocals soar over a bright piano melody, sweeping listeners off their feet and into a world where love is as certain as the sunrise. Yet there are no names or pronouns to conjure a specific image. Love comes in all shapes and sizes, and listeners are free to pour these heartfelt proclamations into whatever vessel fits them best, whether that means loyalty, friendship, family, or even faith.

Deep in the woods, without a soul in sight, a valiant knight wakes to find himself abandoned and covered in blood. Calling out for his princess, he hobbles off to find her spiraling in her castle. Drawing from the emotional turmoil and satisfying payoff that keeps viewers glued to their screens through Bridgerton’s hair-raising conflicts and swoon-worthy love affairs—down to the garments, swords, and British accents—their spark comes to a head in one singular, tense moment. DaLomonze effortlessly becomes the charming knight one could only dream of, assuaging his love’s worries despite the pain he has suffered. He wouldn’t choose anyone else in the world. It might be a little cheesy, maybe intentionally so, but his commitment leaves her speechless, creating the perfect window for “For Your Love’s” sonorous strings to back up his claim as they walk off into the wilderness, hand in hand.
