Tyler Doane of Hankey Marks & Crider

I am committed to providing clear legal guidance and representation to individuals throughout Indiana who are managing personal injury and disability claims.”

Tyler Doane

Doane returns to the firm with extensive litigation experience, having previously spent five years working as a trial attorney with the Marion County Public Defender Agency in Indianapolis. During his tenure there, he represented individuals facing both misdemeanor and major felony charges, managing severe cases involving significant liberty interests. His extensive background in the courtroom includes completing the intensive training curriculum at the Faubush Trial Institute. He handles all stages of case development from initial filing through final jury verdict.

"I am committed to providing clear legal guidance and representation to individuals throughout Indiana who are managing personal injury and disability claims," stated Doane. "My background in public defense taught me the value of direct, honest communication with clients during legal proceedings. I focus on representing individuals with clear factual arguments to secure the appropriate remedies for their situations."

Doane earned his Juris Doctor from the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law, where he participated in the McKinney Trial Team and earned a spot on the Dean's List. He received the G. Kent Frandsen Scholarship for his leadership and participated in multiple legal defense clinics. He completed his undergraduate studies at DePauw University, graduating as an accomplished student-athlete and co-captain of the football and track teams. He maintains active professional involvement in regional legal groups and focuses his current practice on securing disability benefits and managing injury liability disputes.
