“For many families, finding the right mobility equipment or getting a device repaired is about far more than convenience. It is about independence, dignity and quality of life,” said Bill Babby, co-owner of Mobility City of Vancouver. “We are excited to be a local resource people can trust. Customers often tell us that what sets us apart is the ability to come into our showroom and test drive power wheelchairs and scooters before making a purchase. We even have a racetrack in the middle of our showroom so people can truly try before they buy.”

Mobility City of Vancouver offers mobility scooters, power wheelchairs, lift chairs, walking aids, ramps, hospital beds, bath safety products and other mobility solutions. The location also provides equipment rentals and repair services designed to help customers remain safe, mobile and independent.

Bill and Kristin's decision to bring Mobility City to Vancouver was shaped by their professional backgrounds and personal experience caring for family members. Their goal is to create a welcoming local resource where customers and caregivers can receive trusted guidance, dependable equipment and compassionate service.

The Vancouver location is now open and serving customers throughout the local community.
