Every generation has a film that defines it. Pillars of Power is that film for this generation.”

Dawna Campbell

"Twenty years from now, people will look back at Pillars of Power the way they look back at The Secret, and they will say this is where everything shifted," said co-director Moe Rock. "We made a record of what humanity is capable of when it finally tells itself the truth."

Pillars of Power was made for the person who has achieved everything the world said would bring fulfillment and still woke up knowing something was missing. Born from ancient wisdom and grounded in modern science, the mission and vision of this film is clear: to bridge spirituality, leadership, and science in a way that is accessible and life-changing for audiences worldwide. Future generations will look back on this film as the moment that conversation began.

"Every generation has a film that defines it," said executive producer and co-director Dawna Campbell. "Pillars of Power is that film for this generation. What we captured in that room, those conversations, those moments of raw honesty between some of the greatest minds alive today, is something that does not come along twice. This is the one they will still be talking about in 2046."

Pillars of Power: The Hidden Secret Behind Achieving Greatness is dedicated in loving memory to Dr. Jeffrey Fannin, October 20, 1950 – July 19, 2025. A pioneering neuroscientist who spent three decades mapping the human brain, Dr. Fannin's research into the measurable effects of
