Amconex Group announced its continued introduction as the global parent organization for Benshaw Inc., Benshaw Canada Controls Inc., AuCom MCS GmbH & Co. KG, and AuCom Electronics Ltd. established in February 2026. The companies have operated collaboratively since 2019, serving customers worldwide with advanced motor control and automation solutions.

Across industrial, energy, and infrastructure markets, customers are demanding smarter, more efficient, and more resilient solutions. Amconex provides a unified global platform.”

Christoph Vogel, CEO

The introduction of Amconex Group reflects the collective scale, global reach, and expertise of its operating companies while preserving the individual brands customers know and trust. Benshaw and AuCom will continue to operate under their current names, with no changes to leadership, products, customer relationships, or support structures.

Amconex Group was established to better reflect the organization’s shared vision of delivering reliable, engineered solutions for an increasingly electrified, connected, and sustainable world. The new parent structure provides a scalable platform to support continued investment in innovation, technology development, and global customer support.

“The introduction of Amconex Group marks an important milestone for our organization,” said Christoph Vogel, Chief Executive Officer of Amconex Group. “Across industrial, energy, and infrastructure markets, customers are demanding smarter, more efficient, and more resilient solutions. Amconex provides a unified global platform that allows our operating companies to meet those demands while maintaining the focus and expertise that defines Benshaw and AuCom.”

The name Amconex reflects both the organization’s heritage and its forward-looking focus. “Amco” pays tribute to the company’s roots in applied motor control, while “nex,” derived from the word nexus, represents connection - connecting power to process, information to operations, and technology to outcomes.

As Amconex Group, the organization remains committed to delivering high-quality products, engineered solutions, and exceptional service to customers worldwide while building a foundation for future growth and expansion.
