

5 Notable Fence Companies Serving McKinney as Collin County Keeps Growing

A look at five fence companies operating in and around McKinney as the Collin County seat adds thousands of residents a year.

MCKINNEY, TX, UNITED STATES, June 9, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- McKinney, the seat of Collin County, added roughly 8,500 residents between July 2024 and July 2025 and now counts an estimated 242,500 people, up about 22.8 percent since the 2020 Census, according to U.S. Census Bureau figures. The city's blend of a historic downtown, long-established neighborhoods and fast-rising master-planned subdivisions has sustained demand for both new fence installation and the repair or replacement of older fences. For anyone weighing a fence company in McKinney, the result is a deeper and more varied field of providers than the city had even a few years ago. The five companies profiled below are presented in no particular order, based on publicly available information from company websites and review platforms; pricing, scheduling and coverage should be confirmed directly with each company.

Why McKinney's Fence Demand Has Two Sides

McKinney's growth has produced two parallel needs. In newer communities, builders frequently deliver homes without finished fencing, leaving first installations to homeowners working within association timelines. In the city's older neighborhoods, many wood fences installed years ago are now due for repair, restaining or full replacement. As a result, the field of fence companies in McKinney now includes both high-volume installers and smaller shops that emphasize fabrication, repair and custom gate work.

How McKinney Homeowners Are Choosing

Across reviews in the McKinney market, a few decision factors recur. For new installations, HOA and permit handling and clear written estimates tend to matter most. For older properties, the ability to repair and restain existing wood fencing, or to fabricate custom gates, becomes the deciding factor. Material choice also weighs in, since wood, vinyl, chain link and ornamental iron each carry different maintenance and budget implications in the North Texas climate. Before booking a fence company in McKinney, comparing several written estimates remains the most reliable approach.
