

Volcano Engine and Bingo Group Announce AI+IP Collaboration, Launching June 10 Across Multiple Chinese Platforms

Partnership enables AI-generated content using Seedance 2.0 and Stephen Chow's classic IPs, creating a new monetization model for the AI era

HONGKONG, CHINA, June 10, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Volcano Engine, and Data Hash's client, Bingo Group, today jointly announced a new AI+IP collaboration. The initiative will launch starting June 10, 2026 across several Chinese platforms, with a debut on the Volcano Ark Experience Center and Volcano Engine Kickart, while simultaneously opening to LibTV, Reelgen Engine by Kuaizi.ai, Wondershare Filmora, Pixmax, NamiVideo, Kuaijianji_android, Qingjianji, and Qushuiyin_kjj, with Douyin, Jimeng, Jianying, and Xiaoyunque to follow at a later date.

The collaboration is based on the Volcano Ark Copyright

Commercialization Platform and Seedance 2.0's video generation capabilities, allowing users to combine Stephen Chow's classic movie IPs—including The King of Comedy (開心樂園), CJ7 (開心7號), and The God of Cookery (食神)—for AI content creation. This innovative attempt establishes a full-chain monetization model for IPs in the AI era, empowering content creators and movie studios to better capitalize on their intellectual property.

While the emergence of AI technology has significantly improved content creation efficiency, it has also triggered widespread IP copyright infringement issues. This new business model allows both companies to maximize resources, enabling creators to monetize their work more effectively, uphold IP protection rights, and deepen fan engagement with celebrities and their IPs.

Deputy CEO of Data Hash Group, Barbie Man, said, "Data Hash has been assisting Bingo Group in its business transformation since September 2022, and, since the advent of A.I, has assisted Bingo to explore new business opportunities in AI generated content. We are delighted on behalf of Bingo that they have managed to secure a foothold in AI."

Ignious Yong, spokesperson for Bingo Group, said: "We are very excited to launch this collaboration with one of the top technology companies in China and the world. As a company focused on AI+Content+IP, we believe this collaboration can become a successful long-term monetization model for great IPs, celebrities, and content creators. We are also discussing in detail how our companies can deepen our collaboration in AI+IP. Together, we can develop a greater ecosystem that creates more value and monetization opportunities for the entire industry. With the support of Mr. Stephen Chow and our partner, we are thrilled to embark on this fantastic journey."

Starting June 10, 2026, users will be able to engage with the classic movie IPs King of Comedy, CJ7, and God of Cookery. More information will be released via the individual platforms at a later date.

Content creators, movie studios, and artists interested in exploring new opportunities to synergize AI+IP are invited to join this exciting journey. For users who wish to engage with the IPs, please follow the respective platforms for updates.
