NASDAQ: ZENA
ZenaTech joins the Russell 3000® Index, expanding visibility among institutional investors as the company scales its AI drone, DaaS, and defense technology businesses.

"Being added to the Russell 3000® Index is a significant achievement for ZenaTech and a reflection of the momentum we have built across our business," said Shaun Passley, Ph.D., ZenaTech CEO. "This milestone underscores our successful execution in expanding our AI drone and Drone as a Service platforms, while increasing shareholder value and market recognition. We expect Inclusion in one of the most widely followed U.S. equity indexes will increase our visibility among institutional investors and broaden awareness of our long-term growth story. We believe this recognition validates the strength of our strategy and positions us well as we continue to pursue opportunities in the rapidly growing markets for autonomous systems, defense technology, and artificial intelligence.”

The June reconstitution of the Russell US indexes captures up to the 4,000 largest US stocks ranking them by total market capitalization. ZenaTech has been added to the Russell 3000® Index while retaining membership in the Russell Microcap® Index. FTSE Russell determines membership for its Russell indexes primarily by objective, market capitalization, rankings and style attributes.

Russell indexes are widely used by investment managers and institutional investors for index funds and as benchmarks for active investment strategies. According to data as of the end of June 2025, about $12.2 trillion in assets are benchmarked against the Russell US indexes.
