

D&G Construction Reports Boulder County Homeowners Prioritize Planning Over Price on Premium Remodels

Firm shares observations from 50+ recent design-build projects on what high-budget homeowners value most.

LAFAYETTE, CO, UNITED STATES, June 25, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- D&G Construction, a design-build firm serving Boulder County, Colorado shared findings from 50+ recent custom remodels, pointing to a consistent pattern: high-budget homeowners increasingly weigh planning rigor and accountability above headline price when choosing who builds their project.

Drawn from the firm's past 24 months of design-build work across Boulder County, the Homeowners who have been through a difficult project once are not shopping on price the second time. They are shopping on process, and that shift defines the high-budget market”

observations include:

- Planning is the deciding factor. Homeowners who had a prior remodel go poorly cited on-the-fly decisions and unclear scope as the cause, and now ask to see the project resolved in full before demolition.
- Budget certainty outranks the lowest bid. Clients consistently prefer a detailed, itemized quote with no allowances over a lower estimate that leaves room for change orders.
- Single-point accountability is a primary draw. The design-build model, where one team owns design, permitting, and construction, removes the finger-pointing homeowners fear most.

- Communication cadence matters. Weekly updates through a project platform reduce the chasing that homeowners report as the leading frustration with prior contractors.

The firm noted that demand for whole-home remodels, basement finishes, and kitchen remodels was strongest across Boulder County markets, and that project investment levels have remained consistent with clients prioritizing craftsmanship and design specificity over cost reduction.
