As data becomes an increasingly critical asset for individuals and businesses worldwide, the consequences of data loss — whether from accidental deletion, hardware failure, virus attacks, or system crashes — can be devastating. Soouya was built to address this universal pain point, delivering recovery capabilities once reserved for expensive professional labs directly to users' desktops.

A Comprehensive Data Recovery Platform for the Modern User

Soouya supports recovery across a wide spectrum of devices and scenarios, including:

Hard Disk Drives (HDD) and Solid-State Drives (SSD)

SD cards, USB drives, memory cards, and other external storage

Laptops and desktops across all major brands (Dell, HP, Lenovo, Samsung, and more)

System crash recovery via bootable USB creation

Corrupted photo and video recovery supporting all major formats including 4K and 8K

The software's dual-scan technology performs a deep analysis of storage media, enabling Soouya to locate and restore file fragments that other tools may miss — all within a simple three-step process: select a location, scan, and recover.

“Data loss is one of the most stressful experiences a person or business can face. At Soouya, our mission is to make professional-level data recovery accessible to everyone — not just those who can afford specialized lab services,” said a spokesperson for Soouya Technology. “With a 95% success rate and support for over 500 data loss scenarios, we are proud to be the trusted recovery solution for users in over ten countries.”
