world's leading auctioneers of film and television memorabilia, has partnered once again with Planet Hollywood to bring an extraordinary collection of film and TV collectibles to the auction block. Taking place online from June 11 through July 1–2, 2026, the sale will feature over 700 pieces of Hollywood history and is expected to realize more than $680K. Together, the collection offers accessible entry points for both new and seasoned collectors, spanning some of the most recognizable titles in film and television.

HIGHLIGHTS INCLUDE:

Leading the selection is Superman's (Christopher Reeve) Costume (est. $20,000 - $40,000) from Richard Lester's Superman III (1983). Reeve's portrayal helped define Superman for a generation, bringing warmth, humanity, and heroism to the character across four films. Released at the height of the franchise's popularity, Superman III remains a key chapter in superhero cinema history, making this costume a remarkable opportunity to own a piece of the legacy of one of the genre's most enduring heroes.

Also offered are Batman's (Val Kilmer) Bat-Cuffs (est. $3,000 - $6,000) from Joel Schumacher's Batman Forever (1995). Kept in the Batcave below Wayne Manor, the Bat-Cuffs were among the tools of Batman's arsenal before Two-Face (Tommy Lee Jones) and The Riddler (Jim Carrey) destroyed everything he had built. The film was nominated for three Academy Awards® including Best Cinematography, Best Sound, and Best Sound Effects Editing, and received an MTV Movie Award® for Best Song from a Movie for "Kiss from a Rose" by Seal.

Another highlight is a Shrimp Hand (est. $1,200 - $2,400) from Tim Burton's Beetlejuice (1988). During Delia Deetz's (Catherine O'Hara) dinner party, she and her guests were possessed into dancing when their bowls of shrimp cocktails came alive as hands and grabbed their faces. One of cinema's most beloved comedic horror sequences, the scene remains among the most quoted moments from a film that has only grown in cultural stature since its release nearly four decades ago.
