

Czech company Krel Central a.s. earns AAA Gold certificate from Dun & Bradstreet, boosting its European market ambitions

The recognition confirms the company's stability at a time of growing importance for technology, AI and capital readiness

BRUSEL, BELGIUM, BELGIUM, June 12, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Krel Central a.s. has received the prestigious AAA Gold certificate from Dun & Bradstreet, a global authority in business data, analytics and the assessment of corporate credibility. The recognition confirms the company's stability and its strong position among firms that build their development on results, responsibility and long-term trust.

At a time when the business environment is changing rapidly, the importance of verifiable stability is increasing. Business partners, customers and the wider public are paying more attention not only to what a company offers, but also to the strength of its background, the transparency of its operations and its ability to meet obligations over the long term.

The importance of the AAA Gold certificate is underlined by the fact that this level of recognition is reserved only for companies that meet demanding criteria of economic condition and credibility. It is not a standard label for corporate presentation, but an assessment that distinguishes stable and high-performing companies from the wider market. For Krel Central a.s., AAA Gold from Dun & Bradstreet is a strong confirmation that the company can combine growth, responsible management and long-term reliability.

The company's further development also includes preparatory steps toward a potential listing on Euronext. In this context, Krel Central has begun cooperation with advisers and the preparation of documentation that will be important for regulatory review in the next stage of the process. Euronext connects European capital markets through exchanges in Amsterdam, Athens, Brussels, Dublin, Lisbon, Milan, Oslo and Paris. For a Czech technology company, such a step could mean a significant expansion of financing options, greater transparency toward the market and a stronger position in negotiations with international partners. The company will provide further updates in accordance with applicable rules.

The AAA Gold certificate gains an additional dimension because Dun & Bradstreet itself is actively expanding its role in artificial intelligence. Its collaboration with Anthropic, the company behind the Claude AI platform, shows that verified corporate data, ratings and risk information will play an increasingly important role in modern AI tools for businesses. For Krel Central a.s., which also works with artificial intelligence and technology solutions, this is an important signal for the entire market: the future of business will belong to companies that can combine stability, data, automation and trustworthy technological innovation.

Krel Central operates in areas that rank among the most important themes of the modern economy: technology, energy, artificial intelligence, infrastructure and digitalisation. In these segments, credibility is particularly important because successful projects often require long-term cooperation, capital strength and the ability to deliver complex solutions.

Receiving the AAA Gold certificate from Dun & Bradstreet is therefore an important confirmation of Krel Central's work to date. The company shows that its growth is not based only on ambitious plans, but also on solid economic foundations and respect for the professional standards of modern business.
