Top Workplaces recognizes the most progressive companies in Minnesota based on employee feedback collected by Energage, an independent company specializing in employee engagement and retention. The survey asks employees to share their opinions to measure organizational health and satisfaction.

To qualify as a Minnesota Star Tribune Top Workplace, a company must have more than 50 employees in Minnesota. Over 10,527 companies were invited to participate, and MedSource Lab is among the 300 organizations honored with this award.

Star Tribune CEO and Publisher Steve Grove said, "The companies in the Minnesota Star Tribune Top Workplaces deserve high praise for creating the very best work environments in the state of Minnesota. My congratulations to each of these exceptional companies."

"Earning a Top Workplaces award is a badge of honor for companies, especially because it comes authentically from their employees," said Eric Rubino, Energage CEO. "That's something to be proud of. In today's market, leaders must ensure they're allowing employees to have a voice and be heard. That's paramount. Top Workplaces do this, and it pays dividends."

In response, MedSource Labs president David Kunelius said, "This award recognizes our hard work and commitment to building a culture that reflects our values. We are most proud that the area we scored the highest is 'Employees Feel Respected and Supported.'"
