Music and Art Drive Communities Joann Hsieh has been at the forefront of this movement all her life.

NEW YORK CITY, NY, UNITED STATES, June 18, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Joann Hsieh is Appointed to the Board of Directors of the Queens Symphony Orchestra

DDMF is pleased to announce that Joann Hsieh, has been appointed to the Board of Directors of the Queens Symphony Orchestra (QSO), one of New York City's most enduring and community rooted cultural institutions.

Joann brings to the QSO board a distinguished record of leadership, strategic governance, and commitment to public serving initiatives. At DDMF, she has played a central role in advancing organizational priorities, strengthening community partnerships, and supporting mission driven programming. Her appointment reflects both her professional excellence and her dedication to expanding access to the arts across New York City.

About the Queens Symphony Orchestra

Founded in 1953, the Queens Symphony Orchestra is the oldest and only professional orchestra in the borough of Queens, and is a long standing cultural anchor in New York City. QSO is known for its commitment to accessible, high quality orchestral performances, robust music education programs, and deep engagement with the borough's diverse communities. The Orchestra presents free and low cost concerts, collaborates with schools and community organizations, and champions programming that reflects the cultural richness of Queens—the most diverse
