Every detail of Provident Place was designed to ensure older adults can live with dignity, security, and a genuine sense of belonging.

"TD is committed to providing effective solutions to create housing for seniors in South Florida," said Suzanne Lynch, Senior Loan Officer at TD Bank U.S. "Supporting Provident Place marks an exciting step forward. With $34 million in funding and investment for the Golden Acres development, our partnership with The Vestcor Companies and the Housing Authority of Pompano Beach helped develop 100 new homes specifically designed for seniors. With so many older adults in the area facing challenges from rising housing costs, this project demonstrates our commitment to opening new doors and creating more opportunities for Floridians."

The opening of Provident Place marks the first milestone in the Housing Authority of Pompano Beach's broader multi-phase revitalization initiative. The effort reflects a long-term commitment to transforming affordable housing across Pompano Beach, with future phases expected to further expand access and opportunity for residents of all ages and backgrounds.

The Housing Authority of Pompano Beach extends its deepest gratitude to all elected officials, funding partners, development teams, contractors, and community members whose support and dedication made this day possible.
