MyCarePro was established in 2025 to help individuals better understand available health coverage options and enrollment pathways. "As more individuals experience career changes, retirement transitions or other life events that affect their health coverage, the need for clear and unbiased education becomes increasingly important," said Kristopher Powell, president and CEO of MyCarePro. "Our expansion strategy is focused on helping consumers access reliable information so they can better understand their options and make informed decisions about their healthcare coverage."

MyCarePro works with both employers and brokers to help individuals understand their health insurance options following job loss, retirement and other qualifying life events. In addition to providing education about COBRA coverage, the company helps individuals evaluate alternative coverage options that may better align with their healthcare needs and financial circumstances.

The company said interest in COBRA alternatives has grown as consumers become more aware of Marketplace plans, individual and family coverage options, Medicare solutions, and supplemental insurance products that may offer a more sustainable long-term fit.

MyCarePro also assists employers that provide COBRA subsidies to former employees. When subsidy periods end, the company helps individuals explore alternative coverage options during available special enrollment opportunities. According to the company, introducing alternative coverage options earlier in the offboarding process can help reduce subsidy utilization while supporting employees with personalized guidance.

"Many consumers are surprised to learn they may have alternatives to COBRA that better fit their needs and budget," Powell said. "Our mission is to ensure people have access to guidance and educational support during important life transitions. As we continue expanding our reach, we remain focused on helping consumers understand the full range of coverage options available to them."
