

Four Corners Aviation Delivers All-In Access to Biz Jets in its Fifth Year

DALLAS, TX, UNITED STATES, June 22, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Four Corners Aviation is marking its fifth year of operation, reflecting on a period of growth, innovation and client-focused service that outlines how businesses, entrepreneurs, and ultra-high-net-worth individuals access private flying.

Founded in 2021, and operating as a sister company of Mente Group, Four Corners was built on a simple premise: private aviation should be tailored to the client. Now in its fifth year, the company delivers customized aircraft charter, aircraft management and the experience of flying your plane and crew without ownership.

"Our fifth year in operation represents an important milestone for our clients and for Four Corners Aviation," said Brian Proctor, President & CEO. "As more businesses and high-net-worth individuals seek flexibility and efficiency from their aviation programs, we're seeing a fundamental shift in how they think about aircraft access and ownership."

Four Corners gives clients the traditional experience of chartering and aircraft management. In addition, Four Corners can transform traditional aircraft ownership into equivalent and innovative aircraft access by delivering the same plane, same crew and same experience without the burdens of ownership.

Over the years, Four Corners Aviation has expanded its portfolio of services while helping clients navigate an increasingly complex business aviation marketplace. Drawing on sister company Mente Group's industry-leading aviation advisory, transaction and market intelligence capabilities, Four Corners combines operational excellence with strategic expertise to help clients maximize both the value and utility of their aviation assets.

Today, Four Corners Aviation is guided by an experienced leadership team focused on delivering exceptional client service and operational excellence. Chief Operations Officer Bob Schmidt oversees operational strategy and execution, while Chief Revenue Officer Steve Main leads growth initiatives and customer engagement across the organization.

Four Corners remains focused on helping clients fly smarter, manage assets more effectively and access private aviation solutions that align with their evolving business and personal travel needs.
