George Reeves Superman on-screen costume and COA

Featured Auction Highlights:

1. Superman Costumes

- Lot #100: Authentic Superman Costume

This iconic Superman costume was worn by George Reeves during the filming of the classic television series. It features the legendary blue and red color scheme, complete with a flowing cape and the classic "S" emblem emblazoned on the chest. The costume is made from high-quality materials and comes with a Certificate of Authenticity from the Superman Museum, ensuring its provenance and value. This costume is consigned from the son of Frank Tossanini, further adding to its historical significance. The costume was later showcased in a promotional event on Netflix by Goldin Auctions, further cementing its importance in pop culture history.

- Lot #101: Vintage Superman Costume Worn by Kirk Alyn

This rare Superman costume was worn by Kirk Alyn, the first actor to portray Superman in the original film serials in the 1950s. The suit reflects the classic design of the era, featuring the iconic colors and emblem. Crafted from durable fabric, it includes the original cape and is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity from the Superman Museum. This piece is also consigned from the son of Frank Toscanini, highlighting its historical significance and value for serious collectors.

2. Michael Jackson's Throne

- Lot #77: Michael Jackson's Performance Throne

This exquisite throne was used during the 2014 Billboard Music Awards for the holographic performance showcasing Michael Jackson after his passing. Featuring intricate detailing, including gold accents and plush upholstery, this throne is a symbol of Michael Jackson's larger-than-life persona. In excellent condition, it represents a historic moment in music and is a unique collectible for fans of the legendary artist.

3. Paco Rabanne Dress
