Unlike a modern reproduction, the sculpture was created as a one-of-one posthumous original of Michelangelo's David from original red wax molds produced in Florence, Italy. The project required years of development, casting, assembly, and finishing to transform one of history's most celebrated artistic forms into a monumental work of .999 pure silver.

"The Pure Silver David is not a replica. It is a one-of-one posthumous original created from original red wax molds produced in Florence," said Mark Russo, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Treasure Investments Corporation. "This project brought together centuries of artistic heritage, extraordinary craftsmanship, and more than 46,000 ounces of pure silver. We are proud to have created a work that honors one of history's greatest masterpieces while establishing a new chapter in art history."
