Founded in 2015, TimeDoc Health was built to address one of healthcare's greatest challenges: ensuring patients receive the proactive support they need between office visits. Today, the company delivers comprehensive virtual care management services through programs including Advanced Primary Care Management (APCM), Chronic Care Management (CCM), Remote Patient Monitoring (RPM), Behavioral Health Integration (BHI), and other Medicare-supported initiatives.

Since its inception, TimeDoc Health has served more than 2 million unique patients and delivered over 3 million hours of care coordination services. In July 2025 alone, the organization provided more than one million minutes of care coordination, underscoring its growing impact on patients, providers, and health systems nationwide.

During the Inside Business Today interview, Chishty highlights how TimeDoc Health combines advanced technology with personalized human engagement to transform care delivery. The company’s AI-powered platform identifies high-risk patients in real time, integrates clinical and social determinants data, and helps generate personalized care pathways that improve outcomes while reducing administrative burden on providers.

A key focus of the segment is the measurable impact TimeDoc Health delivers for health systems participating in value-based care. Partnering with a large system in the Southeast US, TimeDoc helped achieve a 50% improvement in blood pressure control and a 57% improvement in A1C reduction, while enrolling more than 19,000 patients into care management programs.

The interview also highlights the powerful human stories behind the data. Chishty shares the story of a patient whose dedicated care coordinator recognized critical warning signs, facilitated timely specialist appointments, and helped uncover a life-threatening cardiac condition that ultimately led to a life-saving surgery. Today, that patient is thriving—a testament to the value of proactive, connected care.

“What TimeDoc Health is doing demonstrates the incredible potential of healthcare when technology and compassion work together,” said Bill and Giuliana Rancic. “Their approach is helping providers deliver better care while ensuring patients never feel overlooked.”

“We’re excited to feature TimeDoc Health on Inside Business Today,” said Gila Stern, Vice President of Production. “Their commitment to proactive care, combined with innovative technology and measurable outcomes, is helping redefine what healthcare can look like for both providers and patients.”

What sets TimeDoc Health apart is its unique combination of technology, clinical expertise, and operational excellence. Rather than simply deploying software, the company provides experienced care teams, regulatory expertise, and continuous performance optimization to ensure lasting success for healthcare organizations.

As healthcare continues to evolve toward value-based care models, TimeDoc Health remains focused on its mission to make care more accessible, more effective, and more human—helping providers move from reactive treatment to proactive health management.
