

OpCritical Releases 'Righteousness,' The Second Song And Music Video Of Their Trilogy About Selfish Oligarchs

OpCritical releases music to address societal ills. "Righteousness" condemns oligarchs who spend their money on lavish parties while working citizens suffer.

EVERYWHERE , DC, UNITED STATES, June 26, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On June 26, 2026, the band, OpCritical, released "Righteousness," its sixth single and music video of 2026, to condemn the super-rich who drain money from working people and then flaunt their wealth while the people struggle to get by. In the video, the fat cat barons smoke cigars and party as factories close and people lose their jobs. However, finally, the corruption of the money barons catches up with them, and they are arrested and stripped of their wealth. The last laugh.

"In revolutionary France, a wealthy queen said, 'Let them eat cake' when told of the starving peasants, yet those peasants eventually held her accountable," said OpCritical. "So today, we are calling on citizens to engage in civic action and legal action to hold barons who harm them accountable."

Contrasting Barons With Average Citizens

“Righteousness” is OpCritical’s second in a trilogy about the excesses of oligarchs. OpCritical plans to release many songs this year that address the scourge of inequality. OpCritical believes in the power of democracy to eliminate inequality so that everyone is able to realize their full potential. The band was formed in 2026 in response to the dangers currently facing the world. The band will regularly release new songs and videos until the danger is gone. Since its first release in January 2026, OpCritical has rocketed to global acclaim with millions of views on YouTube, worldwide radio play, and hundreds of rave reviews by music bloggers and journalists.
