Critical minerals are increasingly important to advanced manufacturing, aerospace, high-tech industries, telecommunications infrastructure, and other sectors that support long-term economic development. The agreement reflects a shared interest in exploring opportunities for responsible resource development and strengthening cooperation in strategically important industries.

"Critical minerals are becoming increasingly important to economic development, technological innovation, and resilient industrial supply chains," said Yusif Jabbarov, Chairman of the Board of NEQSOL Holding. "This agreement reflects our long-term commitment to investing in strategically important sectors and building partnerships that create sustainable value. We see significant potential in Uzbekistan and look forward to working closely with our partners to support responsible resource development and unlock new opportunities for growth and cooperation."

As part of TIIF 2026, Yusif Jabbarov also participated in the Azerbaijani delegation's meeting with the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan, Shavkat Mirziyoyev. The meeting provided an opportunity to exchange views on priority areas for investment cooperation and the long-term potential for partnership between Azerbaijan and Uzbekistan.

The cooperation agreement covers critical minerals that play an important role in aerospace, chemical, high-tech, and other advanced industries. The initiative supports efforts aimed at responsible resource development while contributing to stronger and more resilient supply chains.
