ABOUT MADDIE HOGAN

Maddie Hogan is a rising country-rock artist whose rich vocals, catchy songwriting, and commanding stage presence are quickly gaining attention throughout the music industry. After receiving a Golden Ticket on Season 15 of American Idol, Hogan built momentum with original music that blends modern country storytelling with rock-and-roll edge. Her song "Beautiful Temporary" won Best Song in a Music Video at the Scotland International Festival of Cinema, and Nashville Music Scene Magazine named her an Artist/Songwriter to Watch in 2025.

Originally from Delaware County, Pennsylvania and now based at the Jersey Shore, Hogan's sound reflects both her rock-and-roll roots and her love for melodic country storytelling. Influenced by artists who blur the lines between country, rock, and pop, she has crafted a style that feels both modern and timeless. She collaborates with award-winning producers as she establishes herself as a rising force in the evolving country-rock landscape.

Following the June 5 release of "Singin' With the Howlin' Wind," Hogan continues building momentum with more new music on the horizon. Her upcoming duet with a fellow Cape May country artist is set for release on July 10, followed by a heartfelt patriotic ballad honoring the nation's police force on September 4. As she continues recording her upcoming album, she is steadily carving out a lane entirely her own.
