Adrian Burke, Vice President of Global Facilities at Smith

“Smith’s reputation in the market sets us apart from our competition,” said Adrian. “As the growth of the semiconductor marketplace impacts an increasing number of strategic industries, Smith continues to automate and drive efficiency within our best-in-class backbone of warehouses, test labs, and office spaces.”

Adrian joins Smith with more than 40 years of experience in distribution management and supply chain logistics. After graduating from Texas A&M University in 1984, he was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the US Marine Corps and assigned as a Logistics Officer. He continued to take on a variety of directorial roles during his service commitment before being named Commanding Officer of the Defense Logistics Agency’s western global distribution hub. After leaving the military, Adrian continued working in sourcing and logistics, furthering his skills and knowledge in the private sector.

“Adrian brings a wealth of experience, knowledge, and versatility to the role,” said Art Figueroa, Chief Operating Officer at Smith. “Throughout the course of his distinguished career in the US military and private sector, Adrian has been involved in strategic facility planning and management, emergency response and disaster recovery, international logistics, and supply chain management. He is a meticulous planner and possesses a strong attention to detail. We are excited to have Adrian on board, and I look forward to the valuable contributions he will deliver.”
