Bridging the Treatment Gap

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, 48.4 million Americans age 12 or older had a substance use disorder in 2024. Yet among those classified as needing substance use treatment, only 19.3%, or 10.2 million people, received treatment. The Detox California group of treatment centers have been developed in response to the urgent need for clinically sound, individualized care in a safe and restorative environment.

Longitudinal clinical studies have shown us that environment plays a real role in how someone moves through early recovery and avoids relapse.”

Drake Coomer, Executive Director

The Laguna Beach center is the latest addition to Evergrove Healthcare's network of addiction treatment facilities that has set the goal of bridging the treatment gap. The center will provide medically supervised detox and residential treatment for adults 18 and older who are struggling with substance use disorder and co-occurring mental health conditions.

“We provide medically supervised detox and residential treatment for adults who are ready to recover,” said Drake Coomer, Executive Director of Detox California. “Our goal is to make high-quality addiction treatment more accessible while giving patients the privacy, structure, and clinical support they need during one of the most important transitions of their lives.”

Detox California at Laguna Beach offers a comfortable coastal setting with a focus on privacy, individualized attention, and compassionate care. The center’s medical detox services provide clinically monitored withdrawal management, including medication support and 24/7 medical oversight to help reduce withdrawal symptoms and prevent potentially dangerous complications.

Following detox, patients may continue into residential treatment, a live-in recovery program offering 24/7 clinical support, structured therapy, and a substance-free environment designed to support stabilization and sustained healing. The program addresses not only the physical aspects of addiction, but also the psychological, emotional, and behavioral patterns that contribute to substance use.

The facility’s treatment model combines evidence-based therapies, holistic recovery supports, and personalized care plans. Services are designed to help patients build the foundation for long-term recovery while receiving care in an environment that minimizes stress, protects privacy, and supports emotional safety.

“Longitudinal clinical studies have shown us that environment plays an essential role in how someone moves through early recovery and avoids relapse,” Coomer said. “When a patient feels safe, comfortable, and knows their privacy is protected, they are more open to the process. That is what we have built here: a setting where people can focus entirely on healing without distraction or discomfort.”
