Duali Studio Receives Bronze A' Design Award for Clay and Sway, a Porcelain Mug Fusing Clay and Textile

COMO, CO, ITALY, July 2, 2026

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The A' Design Award has announced Clay and Sway by Duali, a porcelain mug created by Duali Studio, as a Bronze winner in the Bakeware, Tableware, Drinkware and Cookware Design category. The A' Bakeware, Tableware, Drinkware and Cookware Design Award is a highly respected recognition within the kitchenware and design fields, granted to works that demonstrate creativity, technical merit, and practical value. This distinction places Clay and Sway by Duali among a curated group of designs acknowledged through a rigorous evaluation process. The recognition reflects the careful development and thoughtful execution behind the work. It also affirms the standing of Duali Studio as a contributor to contemporary tableware design.

Clay and Sway by Duali

The A' Bakeware, Tableware, Drinkware and Cookware Design Award holds relevance for the kitchenware industry and for the people who use everyday objects, as it highlights designs that combine function with sensory engagement. Clay and Sway by Duali responds to a growing interest in tableware that brings personality and tactile richness to daily rituals. The mug aligns with current trends favoring handcrafted, individualized pieces over uniform mass production. For users, the design offers a functional coffee mug with a distinctive character, while for the industry it illustrates how traditional materials can be reconsidered through new combinations. The work demonstrates how utility and emotional resonance can coexist in a single object.

Clay and Sway by Duali is a minimalist porcelain canvas made dramatic with a spontaneous, hand splattered ink pattern that ensures no two mugs are ever identical. The half-moon handle features textile tassels that are not merely glued on; instead, they are meticulously threaded and hand-tied into precision-drilled apertures integrated directly into the handle during its formation. This approach creates a clean and honest connection between the rigid porcelain and the soft, moving textile. As a first-of-its-kind mug that fuses porcelain and textile into a functional drinking vessel, the work establishes a dialogue between two opposing yet harmonious elements. The handle curvature and tassel weight were calculated to ensure balance and to prevent strain on the wrist.

The Bronze A' Design Award recognition may inform future directions for Duali Studio, encouraging continued exploration of material contrasts and craft-led production. The acknowledgment supports the brand in pursuing further innovation in tableware that merges tradition with new techniques. It also serves as motivation for the studio's team to maintain its standards of craftsmanship and conceptual depth. By celebrating the harmonious coexistence of opposing elements, Duali Studio may inspire additional work that brings a sense of life to static objects.
